THE NAVY

THE news that the Royal Navy is to retain a portion of the dockyard area after all will come as a surprise to many. Chief concern will of course be the effect of this decision on the new alternative main or Connaught Road with Wanchai. The harassed motorist will be pleased to learn that this will not be affected, indeed the Navy has tried to help as much possible by asking Government to indicate the alignment of this road first before deciding the area it would retain.

Under these circumstances Government, which is getting by far the largest portion of the Dockyard area, may feel that it would have been unreasonable to complain about the Navy's techold. Hongkong of course knows that today's changed conditions necessitate only an anchorage for a few patrol vessels for local duties.

French fashions sometimes are. Soviet fashions are, however, progressive, colourful, individual. They do take note of the new trends each season, and the elegant Muscovite is interested in what's going on in the fashion world.

This year, the line is far less severe. There are big, soft collars, pretty, full sleeves, wide draped belts. . all combining to give an impression of gentle femininity and bidding farewell to the tailored schoolmisiress look.

The low waistline is slowly dying. The Russians have their own chemise line-but they wear it with a suggestion of a waist. The high bustline is accentuated with broad belts, pockets, bows, trimming or gathers. The chemise is popular not only as a dress, but worn as a two-piece.

IT IS TIME THE CHANGELESS ONE CHANGED!

A BIT of a lull in Paris recently after two days of fireworks.

One collection with all the new features - but prettied up and softened down. And one collection by the Changeless One - Chanel.

Jacques Heim is in tune with the new Paris story. But he takes each theme and softens it, perhaps with an eye on the British market.

He shows the new suit, but makes it softer than Balmain or Cardin. He gets the shoulder width with gentle leg-o'-mutton pleeves.

He makes his jackets longer, but not drastically so. They reach to the wrist, instead of the finger-tips. The whole look is less tailored.

He shows the ankle-length dinner dress—but he splits and folds the hem with a Paul Poiret touch of 1910 poftness. He shows the dropped waist, but in gentler manner. He makes long-body dresses with tucks or pleats falling from the hip-line. These dresses are easy fitting in the body, not moulded tight.

His colours are typical of the season. Bright for daytime, black for cocktails, the whole spectrum for evening. Between recently: the longer jacket six and nine you will have to and the ankle-length evening wear black. And what can one say q

IOC ALMOST UNANIMOUS ON CHANGE OF NAME BY NATIONALIST CHINA

Excerpts Of Minutes Of Munich Meeting Released In IOC Bulletin

Lausanne, Switzerland, Aug. 10 The members of the International Olympic Committee, while differing on what action to take, were practically unanimous at their Munich session in recommending a change of name for the Nationalist Chinese Olympic Committee, the latest issue of the IOC Bulletin in dicated here today.

The bulletin, dated August 15 but published today, contained extensive excerpts of the minutes of the IOC Congress last May at Munich, Germany, where the IOC voted to withdraw recognition from the Chinese National Olympic committee on Formosa, until it takes on a new, acceptable name.

SPORTS SPECIFUM

It was mid-afternoon. The hot humid atmosphere had taken its toll of all but those who had essential reasons for being on the move yet somehow the streets were still crowded and it was far from easy to walk on the footpath.

Mr Wong had just finished an important business conference and as he made his way into the hustling throng in Des Vouex Road he found himself pulled forward by the subconscious thoughts—it was, in fact, almost a mental mirage—of a long cool drink.

Like one abroad in some uncharted desert hir Wong followed his instinct and it seemed that his footsteps were taking him unerringly towards the bar at his favourite club but, as some sage has no doubt recorded 'there's many a slip 'tween a thought and a tot,' and as he waited by the traffic lights near Jardine's new monument to progress and prosperity he caught sight of Big John's swinging shoulders barging a path for themselves through the crowd on the opposite side of Pedder Street.

Intent On Mission

John looked unusually determined and purposeful. /He was quite obviously intent on his mission, whatever it was, and by the very intensity of his concentration Mr Wong decided it must be something pretty important

Just as he started to speculate about his friend's intentions the traffic lights changed and he found himself crossing Pedder Street as Big John came towards him from the opposite direction. The thought flashed through Wong's mind that Big John had said only the night before that he was going sailing today and the fact that he was still very much on dry land seemed to indicate more than ever that something of unusual moment had turned up.

Whatever quip Mr Wong had prepared for the occasion froze on his lips for Big John, his eyes fixed steadily in front of him, swept through the stream of hurrying pedestrians without even noticing his old colleague.

Mr Wong stood in temporary confusion, 'The outsized stinker' he muttered to himself, 'whatever he's up to it's no good not with that look on his face." Completely oblivious of the fact that the traffic lights had changed and that he was in some personal danger Mr Wong stood looking at Big John's broad back as it disappeared in the

He was suddenly brought back to his senses in the most nerveshaking way. "It's just as well I'm paying more attention than your old sport," said a voice almost in his car and he realised with a start that the gleaming front bumper of a giant road monster was within inches of his back.

A Card

"Sorry ... I ... I was just thinking," he slammered and, before he could think of an adequate excuse for his irresponsible actions, the driver of the car had thrust a small card into his hand and was gone.

hir Wong best a hurried retreat in the same direction as Big John and it was not until be was safely back on the footpath that he had a chance to look at the card which was given to him under such unusual circumstances.

As he read it he felt his blood pressure mounting and his temper rising. On one side of the card was neatly printed:-MOTORING HINT

"A hot spanner should be used on a nut that refuses to move. If, however the 'nut' happens to be a jaywalking pedestrian, a cold spanner will do. In spite of his annoyance at the chain of events Mr Wong found himself smiling at the audacity of the motorist and, as he turned the card over, he really bagan to appreciate the potentially morbid humour of the situation. The reverse side of the card had a nest black edge and it also had an words:---

"Here lies of whom they say.

"He died maintaining his right-of-wan." "We almost filled YOUR name in the vacant space." Mr Wong stood for a moment laughing at the words on the card quite indifferent to the curious glances of the passers-by, and then he made off in hot pursuit of Big John. As he moved along the street he happened to glance into one of his astonishment he saw Big John rummaging among the shirts in the Men's Department, As he made to go up the stairs towards the front door Mr Wong spotted the notices announcing "SALE".... and the thought was still uppermost in his mind when he tapped Big John

'A-Sale-ing' "So this was the kind of 'sale-ing' you were going to do. All morning I've been thinking enviously of you at sea with the breeze blowing in your thinning hair. Listen, you great menace, you will definitely be the death of me. A few minutes ago you went stamping past me in the street and in my surprise I almost got knocked down and killed by a car. Here have a look at this card which the driver had the blasted cheek to stick in my hand just before he drove off. Really, John, you cause me more trouble than anyone or anything else I know." To give added strength to his indignation hir Wong finished his vocal attack by formally presenting the motorist's unusual card for John's perusal. read the eard and burst out laughing. "If there's trouble anywhere around, my dear Wong, you'll find it" he said, "but I'm sorry about misleading you regarding the sailingwe had a spot of engine fatture and we had to call the whole thing off. But then I remembered that several of our stores had sales in progress and ... well sales are one of my favourite sports. I've never been able to resist them, It has always been a weakness of mine. Whether it was Selfridge's in London, Lowis's in Manchester, Fraser's in Glasgow, Myer's in Melbourne, or Robinson's in Singapore I've never been able to turn my back on them. Maybe I'll be able to buy a few good sports shirts; ... or just-to-keep in step with modern things maybe I should search for a natty line in flippers, goggles, snorkels, or even water skis and then I could do a nice line around Repulse Bay or Sheko. Sails from the sales so to speak."

'Oh, we are very bright and clever today, aren't wo?" replied Wong, with more than a hint of sarcasm in his voice. "Well, I don't know very much about being bright and clover. I'm certainly not very bright as far as sporting affairs so for, if I was I think I'd make a special effort to get into this great Free Whisky Racket. It's the best sporting gimmick in years," said Big John, with a quiet wink, a knowing wink, to his pal, "That's really why I'm in here." "Free Whisky Racket?" queried Mr Wong, "What are you up to this time. Where have you found a new risky whisky pastime?" "It's all very smiple," said Big John as he handled a fine pair of out-price rubber shoes. "This is the clue. Get into the Lawn Bowls circle. Last weekend there were four bottles of good Scotch given away; one each for two sevens and two for an eight in matches in the Bowls League. It seems to me that all you have to do is get together with a willing opposing skip, toss for who gets the eight, and then share a couple of bottles of the free Scotch. It's as easy as getting pinched for parking.

"Miss.... may I have a pair of these shoes.... size nine.... just the thing for lawn bowls. Rull on the next league game. and my new 'whisky for all campaign. My new specting abject is Two over the Right."

Why Dial When You Can Push A Button

EVER thought why you have to dial a telephone number? What's the virtue in a dial? Why shouldn't you push a button, as you press a bell or click out the bed light?

This is just what 200 families are doing in Connecticut and Illinois, where the Bell Telephone Company has installed the newest thing in telecommunications—the push button telephone. Say I wanted to call my New York number on one of these streamlined instruments. Instead of dialling the long-distance code number and then CI 7-5696, 1 press out the number on nine buttons set in three rows. Simplest thing in the world but an immense amount of research went into answering the question: "Is it ensier to push than to twiddle?" At Bell's New Jersey laborntories, scientists spent months determining how the push buttons should be arranged, Births, Deaths, Marriages, I what colour they should be, how Personal $5.00 per insertion | far apart, and if they should

Difficulties Must With Changes Policy

London, Aug. 10. The difficulties of the dollar and of the market seem giltedged essentially technical: if and when they are tackled realistically, the U.S. gold stock and the U.S. longterm creditor position are immensely strong.

Any non-Communist anythe influence of the the dollar to succumb to these examined: a downfall of that disaster, and could lead to little short of a downfall of Western civilisation.

The real prospect is that, as happened in Britain in 1955-57. the difficulties will have to be tackled by some internal retrenchment, to correct the overvaluation of the dollar at home and abrond by putting more value back into it at home and A abroad.

External Courses The main reason for thinking

so is that, of the two external alternative courses, money policy seems inadequate while external retrenchment and illiberalism would make matters worse. It seems to be taken granted, both in the U.S. abroad, that if pressure on the dollar and the U.S. gold stock intensified it could and would be tackled by protectionism and external illiberalism, and that these devices would help the Blough, Chairman of US Steel dollar and prejudice other cur- Corporation, on July 28 when

Deficit

In addition, there is the large companies this year.) deficit on official and private | capital account. With the U.S. Treasury consenting to pay almost 434 per cent for one-year money at time when all the changes European Bank rates this year have been downward, the two deficits are being gamely combatted by classical money policy. It does a great deal of good, as it never fails to do wherever it is applied; its application always brings a storm of criticism that it is outmoded and unworkable-and yet it always does work. In this case it has brought major relief to the short-term capital position (by reversing the outflow of U.S. short-term empiral and by attracting some foreign money too) and some relief to the long-term capital position. Influence

As it is so potent an, influence on international money movements, and as the dollar's international defences of gold stock and external investment are so enormously strong, it is just possible that the external working of so vigorous a money policy will suffice. It deserves to, since it is being applied courageously. Unfortunately, the current account deteriorates faster than the capital account can im-

EVEN as a subsonic jet-airliner was flying 80 passengers across the Pacific last week at 550 m.p.h., world operators were being told that the type is already out-of-date.

overseas manufacturers were contenders for the alrliner with igiving details of plans to build 1.2 times the speed of sound and planes with a speed of more 1,500 miles range recently rethan 2,000 m.p.h.

Leaders in the British aircraft manufacturing industry were urging the Government to back a hypersonic airliner programme costing £250 million.

(That word "hypersonic" has a very special meaning for aircraft designers. It's a lot more conflicte than "supersonie," for it means not merely above the speed of sound but two or more times the speed of sound.) In America one company has built a full-scale mock-up of a plane capable of flying from Sydney to San Francisco in about four hours.

A SCM Post leader said: "According to the Police report for 1933, motor vehicle and driving licences yielded to Government in that year no lease than $224.421 According less than, $284,431, According produced $650,000. Motor transport was thus taxed to the tune of almost a million dollars, or about one third of the entire cost of maintaining the Police Department.

The figures must provoke serious thought, and in the motorist they will instit dissatisfaction at the high cost of his transport and motoring "Leaving out the question for the moment of the first cost of the vehicle, garaging costs about $20 n month, washing another $5, insurance averages about $6 a month, car registration and driving licence $41 a year, or, say, $3 a month, a total of $34 a month ... together with other charges the cost of running a motor car in Hongkong may be put down at approximately $100

"If in return for this there were many roads and a sympathetic official attitude there would be less complaint. The Truffic Department does splendid work, no doubt, and we do not propose to carp. The general policy, however, is to harry the motorist. He is not even permitted to wait in front of a shop while purchases are made. He
